COMMERCIAL INTELLIGENCE

SATURDAY EVENING, MARCH 12.

THE announcement that England will contribute the large sum of 5 millions sterling towards the Afghan war expenses comes very opportunely before the issue of the Indian Budget. Government will thus be enabled to make full use of the information in their estimates of ways and means, and it will go a long way towards placing the financial position in a favourable light. The mode in which the transfer of the amount is to be affected will prevent it exercising a material influence on exchange, which it would have done had the arrangement been to deduct the whole sum from one year's drawings; but there can be no doubt that it is distinctly in favour of Government securities. In London yesterday they were unchanged, the 3½ per cent Sterling Loan being at 102¼, enfaced 4 per cent. Rupee Paper at 84¾ and 4½ per cent. at 91¼; but the effect of the announcement is not yet apparent, and moreover, Silver is easier, being last quoted at 52½d. per oz. Oriental, Chartered, and Chartered Mercantile Bank shares all come 10s. per share lower.

Another withdrawal of £100.000 from the Bank of England for North America is advised, but the money market remains unchanged. Consols are still quoted at 99⅜; French Rentes at 121.

Metals come weaker, Copper Braziers being quoted at £70; Y. M. Brazier at 5¼d. per lb. In General Produce Copper and Cocoanut-oil are unchanged. Rapeseed is again slightly firmer. Wheat is quiet at 9s. 2d. and 8s. 8d. per cental for No. 1 and No. 2 qualities respectively in Liverpool.

In the Manchester Piece-goods market Reuter reports a moderate business at previous quotations, with the exception of a decline of ¼d. per lb. in Twist. Private advices, however, are decidedly quiet in tone.

Cotton in Liverpool yesterday, according to Reuter, closed, with sales of 8,000 bales, firm; but private messages all advised a dull feeling and, in the majority of cases, lower prices to arrive. To-day's market closed heavy, sales 6,000 bales, spot prices unchanged, but May-June futures are quoted 1-16d lower. In New York ready Mid.-Uplands have receded to 10 15-16 cents, and June shipment from 10'89 to 10'80 cents per lb.

Our usual weekly statement of the statistical position is given below. Since last Friday the Liverpool stock has increased by 17,000 bales, and the total visible supply for all Europe by 40,000 bales. The latter now stands at 379,000 bales over the same date last year, and it is worthy of notice that of this excess Surats contribute 103,000 bales, or about 30 per cent., whilst they are little more than 10 per cent. of the total supply. The American figures are, however, the great point of interest still. Up to yesterday the receipts at the ports were 446,000 bales ahead of last season, and we commence this week with 17,000 bales for the day against 8,000 on the corresponding date both last year and 1879. Such statistics as these cannot be explained away, and the bull element must be strong in people who, in face of them, can see any room for a rise.

The American Crop figures to date give the following comparisons with the two previous seasons :—

	1881.	1880.	1879.
Week's Receipts	138,000	64,000	79,000
" Exports to U. K.	59,000	45,000	62,000
" " to Continent	72,000	59,000	85,000
Total receipts since 1st Sept	4,779,400	4,333,600	3,983,500
" Exports to U. K. "	1,930,500	1,700,000	1,545,700
" " to Continent "	1,149,300	955,900	1,150,000
" Stock in the Ports	905,000	881,000	634,000
Saturday's Receipts	17,000	8,000	8,000

The total visible supply of cotton for all Europe on the 11th instant compares as follows with the same date on the two preceding years :—

	1881.	1880.	1879.
Total supply of all kinds	3,070,000	2,691,230	2,430,210
" " " Surats	337,000	233,970	234,420
For the U. K. only the figures are :—
Stock in Liverpool	728,000	575,540	552,380
" London	45,000	26,910	62,740
American Afloat	340,000	230,000	317,000
E. Indian "	65,000	83,000	56,000
	1,178,000	915,450	988,120
Price of Mid.-Uplands	6 3-16d.	7½d.	5¾d.
" Fair Dhollera	4½d.	5 15-16d.	4 5-16d.
Difference	1 9-16d.	1 7-16d.	1 1-16d.

EXCHANGE to-day has been very quiet, at a decline of 1-32 on yesterday's closing rates. A fair amount of paper has been placed for a Saturday, doubtless from a desire to cover in transactions before the holidays, and a much larger business would have been practicable had the banks reduced their buying rates a further 1-32d. Closing quotations are :—

Bank Bills on demand	1s. 7 31-32d.	per rupee.
Do. telegraphic	1s. 7 15-16d.	"
Do. 3 months' sight	1s. 8 3-32d.	"
Credits, 3 "	1s. 8 9-32d.	"
Documents, 3 "	1s. 8 5-16d.	"
Francs, 3 "	2f. 14½c.	"

On Calcutta the demand rate continues at par, but 60 days' sight drafts have recovered to ¾ per cent. discount. This is pretty good evidence of the existing ease in money amongst the exchange banks, and in the bazaar we hear of loans having been negotiated at 3¾ and 4 per cent. against the Bank of Bombay's minimum of 6 per cent.

GOVERNMENT PAPER has been very steady at unaltered rates, say Rs. 100¾ for Fours and Rs. 109¾ for Fours-and-a-half.

SHARES are quiet but very steady. Bank of Bombay's are firm at Rs. 737½. In Press Companies the only movements recorded are an advance of Rs. 50 in East India, and a decline of like extent in Fort. Spinning and Weaving Mill shares in most cases are without change, but we notice a decline of Rs. 5 in Khutao Muckonjee and Manockjee Petit, and an advance of Rs. 10 in Bombay United and Coorla, Rs. 5 in National, and Rs. 2½ in Mazagon. Prince of Wales Fire Insurance shares have advanced to Rs. 1,000.

COTTON.—Only a very small business has resulted to-day. Sellers have been very firm in holding for yesterday's prices, which buyers in most cases have declined to pay, although a good deal would be done at Rs. 3 to Rs. 5 under the existing level. We quote :—

Good Omra, March	Rs. 200	per candy.
F. G. F. "	" 183	"
G. F. "	" 173	"
Good Broach, "	" 223	"
Good Dhollera, April	" 196	"
F. G. F. do.	" 185	"
G. F. do.	" 174	"

SEEDS and WHEAT are firm at unchanged prices.

FREIGHTS to-day have been, if anything, a trifle steadier, not so much for ready, perhaps, as for forward. For early April loading for Liverpool 32s. 6d. is quoted, and late April 35s. per ton.

PIECE-GOODS are very quiet at previous values. Dealers are doing very little, in anticipation of the Holi holidays, and during the whole of the coming week the demand is likely to be limited.

COALS are dull at previous values.

The Bombay Gazette

MONDAY, MARCH 14, 1881.

A VIGOROUS attempt is being made at last to get rid of one of the most irritating nuisances that Bombay has laboured under for many years past. The public have been most surprisingly long-suffering in regard to this matter. The nuisance has been talked of constantly by everybody who has been annoyed and inconvenienced by it,—which probably includes every person who has spent a month in the town during the last ten years, and men have sworn "by the nine gods," or by oaths equally formidable as that of Lars Porsena of Clusium, that they would suffer wrong no more in this connection; but the great company in whose interest the nuisance has been permitted to be set up and exist has hitherto been powerful enough to treat the very general complaint of public inconvenience with defiance. Now, however, we hope that something will be done to improve the existing state of things, the troublesome character of which anyone who has been so unusually fortunate as to have escaped annoyance so far may easily obtain practical experience of by attempting to drive or walk at almost any hour of any day along Nesbit-road. A memorial of the inhabitants of the city of Bombay has been drawn up, and has already been signed by a large number of influential gentleman, which sets forth, for the information of His Excellency the Viceroy in Council, the serious disadvantages and annoyances under which the Bombay public labour in consequence of the continuance of the level-crossing of the G. I. P. Railway over Nesbit-road, and prays that Lord Ripon "will be pleased to call for a report on the subject of the Nesbit-road overbridge from the Railway Department of Government in Bombay, and that on a verification of the statement contained in this memorial," His Excellency "will be pleased to take such steps as may seem fit to compel the Great Indian Peninsula Railway to provide without further delay an overbridge at the spot in question." There can be no doubt about the verification of the memorial; we hope there will be as little question about granting its request. It is indisputable that the nuisance is an intolerable one. Nesbit-road is a very important and much frequented public street. It is—except for the level-crossing—the quickest route for the residents of Mazagon to the west part of the city, the chief business centre; and it is the road by which large quantities of goods are conveyed to the Prince's Dock. Yet this busy street is blocked one hundred and fifty times a day by the closing of the gates of the G. I. P. R. crossing. The stoppages of traffic frequently extend to a quarter, and sometimes to half an hour, and we believe the average duration is between five and ten minutes; so that for a very large proportion of the day the street is completely blocked. A member of the Municipal Corporation and Town Council—Mr. Muncherjee Nowrojee Banajee—who has daily experience of the delays occasioned by the crossing, addressed Mr. Grant, Municipal Commissioner, on the subject some time ago, when Mr. Grant replied "There is no doubt that an overbridge is much required in place of the the present level-crossing on Nesbit-road. I suggested a scheme to the railway company in consultation with Major Oldham, and applied to Government for some land to enable me to carry it out; but the railway company will not move in the matter, and it appears to be hopeless to get them to do anything. I would recommend the inhabitants of that part of Mazagon to memorialize the Viceroy on the subject, through the usual channel, the Government of Bombay." Mr. Grant's advice is now being followed, but the memorial will go from the whole Bombay public, every member of which is interested in the matter, and not from a section merely; and we trust in a short time it will not appear so altogether "hopeless to get them (the railway company) to do anything" as Mr. Grant found it.

THE news that terms have been offered to the Boers, and an armistice of ten days entered upon, is calculated to surprise on-lookers, whose attention has been, naturally enough, concentrated on the untoward military events which have been recently transpiring in the Transvaal. We have there reached a juncture at which a British force, marching to the relief of garrisons beleagured by "insurgents," has been twice thrown back with considerable loss. We all know what the world would have thought if the Russians, say, had offered terms to the Turcomans before taking Geok Tepe; and there will be nothing surprising if a considerable section of English opinion views with extreme suspicion and disfavour any step on the part of the English Government which might wear the appearance, at a moment like this, of faint-heartedness and surrender. It will be admitted, however, that our judgment on the conduct of the Government in this matter must turn on the circumstances in which they have formulated the terms on which they are willing that the war should cease, and still more on the nature of the terms themselves. On the latter point we have as yet no information worth considering. But if we do not know the exact scope of the British proposals, a careful examination of the circumstances which have led up to the present armistice will of itself dissipate, we are convinced, the impression that the Ministry have "dishonourably sued for peace." It is difficult to disentangle the story of the negotiations which have been so curiously intermingled with the operations of war; but we are pretty confident that the following account is substantially correct.

The news of the outbreak in the Transvaal gave the death-blow to the theory that the annexation of that province had been carried out in accordance with the wishes of the white population. At the time when the annexation was made, it was possible for the advocates of the measure to say—possible, let us hope, to believe—that the Boers themselves were willing to surrender of their own accord the pledge which England gave them in 1852 to respect their territory. And accordingly the severely accurate Mr. James Lowther informed the House of Commons that the annexation had been "received with gladness and satisfaction by the people of the Transvaal generally;" while the Queen herself was so far misled as to say in the Speech from the Throne in 1877 that the proclamation of her sovereignty in the Transvaal had been "received with enthusiasm." In the face of the intelligence from the Transvaal, delusions of this sort melted away. Sir Bartle Frere, it is true, contended in the columns of a well-known periodical that the outbreak was due to "external advice prompted by the embarrassments of the English Government in the United Kingdom," and gravely feared "that unguarded (oh, Mr. Gladstone!) expressions of English politicians had strengthened the agitation." So, two weeks before the outbreak, the Administrator of the Transvaal, in apologising to Lord Kimberley for having had to lock up an editor, assured the Secretary of State that the paper conducted by the "evil-seeker" and "law-breaker" in question was at the bottom of the whole agitation against his Government, which would most certainly vanish with the appearance of the said editor in the dock. We know something now of what Sir Owen Lanyon's incapacity to gauge what was passing round him has cost the country. If Sir Bartle Frere's paper is not likely to do such harm, it is because the manifesto in question is a mere reproduction of a theory which had already, with cause enough, fallen into utter discredit.

But if public opinion in England refused to believe that a handful of Dutch farmers had banded themselves against the might of England in mere caprice, there was also a general—if not quite so unanimous—feeling that the one solution of this unlooked-for situation which the country could not acquiesce in, was that the Boers should be allowed to dispose of the whole controversy by force of arms. That the Boers had been wronged was becoming painfully clear; but it was felt that it was impossible to undo what had been done. The claim of the Boers to absolute sovereignty in the Transvaal was, to begin with, a questionable one. To acquiesce in the resuscitation of an independent and hostile State which had shown itself unable to repel the attacks of its barbarian neighbours would have been a suicidal policy on the part of men responsible for the safety of Englishmen in the Transvaal and the English colonies in Africa. And a consideration which, perhaps, pressed on the Ministry as much as any other was the position of responsibility in which they found themselves with regard to the natives, who form the overwhelming majority of the inhabitants of the Transvaal. The atrocities of which the Boers have been guilty towards their subject races may for the moment be obscured by the gallant stand they are making for political independence. But none the less do these horrors form material factors in the problem; and it need cause no surprise that the English Ministry judged at once that it was impossible to lay down with honour the tutelage with which they had been invested. Much in the way of local self-government might be—and it was felt ought to be—conceded to the Boers. But the sovereign independence they asked for it was impossible to concede; and it therefore became an indispensable accompaniment of any concession that the Boers should lay down their arms. Was there any reasonable prospect that they would do this?

The anxiety which the Boers showed when the decision of the English Ministry became known, as to the treatment they might expect if they surrendered, was in itself, we cannot help thinking, most significant. It was, however, impossible, for obvious reasons, for the Government to do more than take the vigorous steps they did for the restoration of the supremacy of England in the Transvaal. The first overtures of peace came from the President of the Free State, who, besides general motives of good-will to both parties, had all the anxiety that naturally falls to the lot of a man who sees his neighbour's house burning. As early as the 6th of December—about the time when Sir Owen Lanyon's attention was almost exclusively devoted to his "wrongly-disposed" editor—President Brand wrote to warn the Administration of the imminence of an outbreak. When the outbreak did come President Brand, after doing all in his power to secure the neutrality of his own State, benevolently exerted himself to find a way out of the imbroglio which might satisfy both parties. On the 26th of January he telegraphed to the Governor at the Cape to ask if England would not formulate the conditions on which she was willing to grant peace to the Boers. Like most other people, Mr. Brand was convinced that England could afford, and would be willing to make, some concession to a popular demand of which she had been for the first time made aware by the outbreak; and he hoped that a frank statement of the length she was prepared to go in this direction might save further very useless bloodshed. To this communication, which was telegraphed to them, and which was the second of its kind—the former having been entrusted to the post—Government replied that if the Boers laid down their arms they would at once make proposals which they did not despair of rendering acceptable to all the parties to this controversy. Mr Brand, however, had not spoken as the mouthpiece of the Boers, and the Government were careful to keep within the lines of the channel through which this communication had reached them, and did not ask Mr. Brand to communicate any message to the Boer chiefs. On receipt of Lord Kimberley's telegram, Mr. Brand telegraphed to Sir Hercules Robinson, who had by this time assumed the Government of the Cape, expressing his gratification at the language of the message, but urging the great importance of the English Government's coming to some speedy conclusion as to the nature of the scheme they spoke of preparing, contingent on the submission of the Boers. This, as the event has shown, the English Ministry was quite willing to do; but here the evil fate which has dogged us in South Africa slipped in and cut the slender thread of negotiation. At the very moment when Sir Hercules Robinson and Mr. Brand were holding their telegraphic communication, and when Mr. Brand was, on his own responsibility, sending expresses post-haste to the Boer leaders, the battle of Laing's Neck was raging. Six days before Sir George Colley had despatched an ultimatum to the "insurgents" who were barring his way on the slopes of the Drakenberg, calling on them to lay down their arms at once, and apparently unconditionally. The demand had been—after a reference, be it noted, to the Boer head-quarters—rejected, on the expressed ground that men who were in arms to maintain a protest, which they had never for a moment abandoned, against the annexation of their country, would not surrender as rebels; and Sir George Colley advanced to the attack.

The issue of that day rendered it difficult, if not impossible, for the Ministry to move another step in the direction of peace. It is hard to believe that the Boer chiefs before the battle of Laing's Neck had not learned anything about Mr. Brand's benevolent exertions. But they cannot be accused of having brought on that engagement, in the face of pending negotiations, by refusing as they did to surrender to Sir George Colley's imperious summons. The official communication of the message from Her Majesty's Ministers which Mr. Brand was ultimately asked to make reached them shortly after the engagement. Mr. Brand was then informed—in reply to an urgent request that the Boers should have some guarantee against being treated as rebels—that her Majesty's Government would be ready to give all reasonable guarantees as to the treatment of the Boers after submission, if they desisted from

THE Indian Spectator considers the Pioneer's demented cry against the Press Commissionership is a humiliating proof of what that once powerful organ is coming to.

ABOUT nine lakhs of rupees, out of the fourteen lakhs required in this country, have been subscribed towards the Bareilly and Kumaon Railway scheme.

IT is reported from Sumbulpore that cholera has broken out on the Raipore road. It has also appeared in some parts of the Bilaspore district. Cattle-disease is reported from the following districts of the Central Provinces :—Bilaspore, Chanda, and Nagpore.

THE Lahore paper hears from Kabul that by order of the Ameer all the sons of the late Ameer Dost Mahomed Khan, who were recently brought prisoners into the city, have been put to death. If this report is true, and there seems to be little doubt about it, Abdul Rahman's chances of a long reign are very small.

NEARLY one hundred persons died in the city of Madras in the week ending the 4th instant more than did during the corresponding week of last year. The death-rate was 38·1 per mille, the mean for the ten previous years being 38·8. There were seventy deaths from small-pox alone in the week under notice.

THE Government of India, in the Agricultural Department, has, it is stated, sanctioned a grant of the sum of Rs. 6,000 from the Imperial revenues towards the cost of the proposed operations for opening up a trade in Indian tea with America and Canada. In making this grant the object of the Government is to aid in setting the trade in motion, its development, when once established, being left to private enterprise.

IT is likely, the Pioneer states, that upon the railway being completed to Peshawar, a considerable reduction will be made in the garrison in that cantonment. The Peshawar District as a separate military command may be abolished, Peshawar itself, and the men, being treated as belonging to the command of the General Commanding the Punjab Frontier Force, while Nowshera may be controlled from Rawalpindi.

THE court of inquiry held at Penang into the abandonment by the captain and engineer of the steamer Sissie, which had lost her propeller, between Tongkah and Penang, has resulted in both their certificates being cancelled. The vessel, with some 40 Chinese passengers, men, women, and children, drifted under the command of the gunner to Achcen, whence she was towed back to Penang, and it proved that the passengers had abundance of rice and water. The captain was subsequently criminally prosecuted in the police court, and sentenced by the magistrate to six months' rigorous imprisonment.

GENERAL AMIR ALI, the Afghan Envoy, who has been in Calcutta since the 3rd, left again direct for Kabul on the 8th inst. The Englishman says of him and his mission :—The object of his visit, as far as we have been able to ascertain, was to get anything he could, but his specific request was for small-arms ammunition. A considerable quantity of this, chiefly for muzzle-loaders, has been given to him by Government. He also carried away with him a Japanese crying doll, a 20-odd chambered repeating rifle, and a few other equally useful articles which he had spotted in the shops about, and which were given to him for his personal enjoyment.

THE Calcutta papers publish a letter of the Bengal Chamber of Commerce to the Agent of the East Indian Railway Company, regarding the serious inconvenience to which merchants, brokers, and all interested in the transmission of produce by the railway are subjected, in consequence of the recent changes regarding the delivery of consignments and the reducing the time hitherto allowed for the goods to remain in the railway shed. The Indian Daily News scarcely thinks the Agent of the railway company will disregard the practical representations of the Committee of the Chamber on this really important question.

THE following is from the Behar Herald :—Mr. MacDonnell, Magistrate of Sarun, had a narrow escape the other day of his life. On the 4th instant, while he was sitting in his court, a man, apparently a lunatic, rushed in with an axe in his hand, and stood right beside the chair in which Mr. MacDonnell was seated, with the axe uplifted, and ready to fall. Fortunately the axe was snatched away from the man, who was captured and prevented from committing any mischief. The man is in custody, and will perhaps be tried.

AT the Bethune School prize-distribution on Thursday Sir Richard Garth intimated to those present that he had received a letter from Government House, to the effect that the Marchioness of Ripon, who was expected to preside on the occasion, was unable to attend owing to indisposition. He regretted very much that this was so, and also that her ladyship was unable to be present at the distribution of prizes. The Indian Daily News expresses a hope that the indisposition is not of a kind to seriously interfere with her performance of those pleasant duties she discharges with a dignity and grace all her own.

IF Mahomed Hyat Khan had been a Hindoo, the Amrita Bazaar Patrika says, the case against him would have created a great row. But Mussalmans, though they feel as much as the Hindoos do, or perhaps more, for a member of their community, are not in the habit of giving vent to their feelings in loud complaints. Nevertheless the Mussalmans do feel keenly the secret manner in which Hyat Khan is being tried. Why this secret trial, they complain ? The prevailing belief is that the trial is being held secretly to save Sir Frederick Roberts. Indeed, if the Government conducts the trial in this secret manner, it must remain prepared to come across all sorts of rumours against its motives.

IT is significant of the progress of education amongst the younger generation of Kattaywar Rajputs to hear that Kumar Shri Harbhamsingh, younger brother of the reigning Chief of Morvi, is going to Cambridge for further prosecution of studies commenced under the able principal of the Rajkot Rajkumar College. "The young nobleman," the Indian Spectator thinks, has taken a step which promises well not only for his own future, but in a degree, for the future of Morvi, and which reflects high credit on his advisers. It is to be hoped that his brother, the Thakore Sahib, and the Rani, will use their best endeavours to encourage Kumar Harbham in his enterprise. Many outside his own circle will watch with interest a career which gives such a happy augury of the future of Kattaywar."

THE telephone established at Lahore between the Punjab Civil Secretariat and the residence of Mr. Muckworth Young, the Secretary to Government, has been found to be so great a success, that, the Civil and Military Gazette says, what was merely meant to be a means of facilitating work at the busy time of His Excellency the Viceroy's visit will probably prove the pioneer of a very general use of this most useful invention in Lahore, which may not unlikely culminate in the establishment of a telephone exchange. Arrangements are about to be taken in hand for the connection by telephone of the house of the District Superintendent of Police, with his office, the police lines, and the Central Jail; and the Accountant-General's office will similarly be put in communication with the Civil Secretariat, the Bank of Bengal, the Public Works Secretariat, and the Central Jail Press.

THE appointment of Lieutenant-General the Hon'ble A. E. Hardinge to the Bombay command, the Allahabad paper remarks, is placed beyond all doubt by the mail announcements just received. His career is so well known, from the days when he fought as a boy at his father's side in the Sikh Wars of '45-46, and, later, did gallant service in the Crimea, to the time when he relinquished his command of the Meerut Division, sore to his inmost soul at being denied a share in the Afghan campaign, then just commencing, that there is no need to give its history here. General Hardinge has seen much service in courts as well as in the field, is a great favourite and constant correspondent of Her Majesty the Queen, and knows as much of the inner life of our Royal family, and says as little about it, as any man living. He is an accomplished linguist, and has read and remembered much, especially of the literature of his profession. We have known him called a dull man. But to those who allow him time to disentangle his thoughts from certain familiar peculiarities of voice and manner, which are apt to obstruct their flow, his originality, shrewdness, and versatility are striking. Altogether, then, the Bombay army, as well as Bombay society, may be congratulated on General Hardinge's succession ; whilst the supreme military authorities will find him too keenly alive to the hints in its military system to hinder the introduction of any reasonable reforms.

OF the gift of ammunition to the Ameer the Pioneer writes that it will do much to strengthen his position at Kabul, but it would be well if Abdul Rahman were given to understand that he must become dependent upon his own exertions hereafter, and that the British Government will not be ready to pour thousands of cartridges into Kabul whenever a request for such aid is made. It is to our advantage now so to help the Ameer, our nominee, as to enable him to overcome all opposition ; but at the same time he should be induced to do all in his power to make himself strong without extraneous assistance. Ammunition is, of course, of immense value in a country like Afghanistan ; but unless we have a sure guarantee that it will not be used against British soldiers when a new war occurs, it should be doled out very sparingly from our arsenals. Such a guarantee can never be given, and therefore, when once Abdul Rahman has crushed all the opposition he is likely to meet with, supplies from India should cease. The British Government committed itself to the Ameer to this length, that he would receive moral and material support in return for a friendly attitude towards the Government ; but the material aid should rather be in the shape of a money subsidy than in grants of ammunition. Rupees cannot be fired from rifles. The strength of Afghan resistance to an invading army must always be equal to the supply of cartridges, gunpowder, and lead in the possession of the people, and this supply should not be allowed to grow too large. Sher Ali waxed insolent chiefly because his arsenal was full of snider ammunition, percussion caps, and gunpowder. His workmen, instructed in Indian workshops, had turned out rifles and cannon, and he might well be pardoned the thought that the passes could be held against our troops. To run the risk of a repetition of this would be absurd ; we must be ready, if occasion should arise, to strengthen Abdul Rahman's hands to the fullest extent, but in the meantime he should only receive just so much aid as will make him equal to extending his power in Turkestan and southwards to Kandahar—that is, if Kandahar is to pass into his hands.

THE results of the final census of Madras taken on the 18th February last are, by a rough approximation, issued by the President of the Municipality, as follows :—

	Males	Females	Total
1881	169,097	205,951	405,948
1871	161,676	202,876	397,552
Increase	5,321	3,075	8,396

In 1871 the marine population was not included. It amounted in 1881 to 1,068 persons. Deducting this from the gross increase, there remains approximately a net increase of 7,328. The figures must be received with caution, as they are made up from the totals sent in by the enumerators and have yet to be checked in the office of the Deputy Superintendent of Census.

For many years I have endured fearful headaches ; if I am now able to state that I am radically cured I owe it to Guarana.—YHOU CAPELLEANU, General Director of the Police Department, Wehedinzi, Roumania.

SKETCH MAP OF THE MARMAGAO AND HOBLI RAILWAY.

MARMAGAO AND HOBLI RAILWAY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "BOMBAY GAZETTE."

SIR,—Your contemporary has recently had articles on the relative merits of the Carwar and Marmagao-Hobli Railway projects, in which the latter appears to a disadvantage as regards length, the necessity of building a new harbour, and the first fifty miles of the line being in foreign territory. These are drawbacks ; but, again, there are great advantages. The line makes direct for Bellary through Gadag, and is advantageously located for branch lines or feeders to Belgaum and Kaladgi, on the north (only thirty-two miles distant to the former place from main line), and to Bankapore, to the south of Hobli. Both Kaladgi and Bankapore are the natural centres of a rich agricultural district, only wanting an outlet for its produce to become rich and prosperous. But another point to bear in mind is, that this railway would tap the very centre of the worst famine-stricken districts of India, in spite of their rich soil and agricultural wealth. One has only to turn to the excellent maps attached to the recently published report of the Indian Famine Commission to be struck by this fact. The index map of past famines shows that the country about the Kistna and Tungabadra rivers has been the seat of intense famines in 1833, 1854, 1865-66, and 1876-78. The detail map of famine of 1833 shows that the area of intense famine was located between Kulburga and Bellary, or some sixty miles west of Kaladgi and Gadag ; in 1854 the famine was intense at Bellary, but severe famine extended as far as Kaladgi and Gadag ; in 1865-66 Bellary is again the centre of intense famine, and the severe famine area extends to Gadag once more ; and, finally, in 1876-78, the whole of the Deccan and Mysore in Bellary as a centre is subject to intense famine, extending, in this case, nearly to Dharwar and Belgaum, on the west, where severe famine prevailed. We have thus three intense famines within twenty years, and yet nothing has been done to put this large country in connection with the coast—its natural outlet, whence it can draw its supplies at the cheapest rates—beyond a discussion on the merits of the Carwar railway survey, which has extended over ten years !

Government no doubt has its hands full ; but surely it must strike any outsider that, had this neglected country been under a local energetic Government, it would have had long ago direct railway communication with the coast. Private enterprise again comes forward, trusting to find a helping hand from Government, but apparently is not cordially welcomed. This is not as it should be. Safe seaports are amongst the crying wants of India, and surely if a private company are prepared to make one and construct a railway into the worst famine-stricken country of India, they should be received with open arms, and means should be devised by our Government to help them on in their great and useful enterprise.

THE EASTERN TOUR OF THE ARCHDUKE OF AUSTRIA.

RESPECTING the voyage of His Imperial Highness the Arch-Duke Rudolf, Heir-apparent to the Crown of Austria, in the Imperial Austrian Yacht Miramar, to Egypt and the Holy Land, we observe that great preparations were made for his reception in Egypt. Several Austro-Hungarian Lloyd's S. N. Co.'s steamers were sent out to sea with a number of guests to welcome the Prince. The court train of the Khedive was expected in Alexandria in charge of Tonino Bey, Marshall of the Viceregal Palace, in order to convey His Imperial Highness the Crown Prince to Cairo. On his landing at Alexandria, he was welcomed by Mr. Gaddum in the name of the Austrian colony at that place. The Envoys of King John of Abyssinia at the court of the Khedive asked the Austrian Agent Diplomatique at Cairo to introduce them to His Highness. For the state ball at Cairo, in honour of the Prince, which was to have take place on the 23rd February, no less than 1,200 invitations were issued. From Egypt the Prince goes to Jerusalem, where also interesting preparations were going on for his reception. As soon as the Imperial visit was made known, the chiefs of the different religious communities assembled in order to make arrangements for the reception ; they, however, failed to come to an understanding, and therefore each of them decided to act independently. The Catholics and the Jews will separately meet the Prince in the Jaffa-road, the former taking their banners. The latter decided to bear a flag having a suitable motto inscribed upon it. The Catholics were to carry in their hands a branch of palm ; and it was also intended to form a body-guard to escort the Prince. His Highness will be welcomed at Jaffa by the Military Governor of Jerusalem, the Austrian Consul, and a Delegate from the Latin Patriarch residing at Jerusalem. On his return voyage the Prince will pay a visit to Damascus, and embark at Beyrout en route to Vienna viâ Trieste.

MR. SERJEANT ATKINSON'S LAW LECTURES.

MR. SERJEANT ATKINSON'S second lecture on the "Laws and Constitution of British India" was delivered on Saturday afternoon last in the Sir Cowasjee Jehanghier Hall of the Bombay University, in the presence of several members of the Bar, pleaders, and law students. The Hon'ble Mr. Justice West presided ; and there were also present Mr. N. Spencer, Judge, Small Causes Court ; Messrs. Newcome Fox, Campbell Fraser, R. R. Vicajee, K. T. Telang, G. S. Mankur, Sadashew Nana, and N. R. Motabhoy, barristers-at-law ; Messrs. Hormusjee Dadabhoy, Maneksha Jehangirshaw, Rustomjee Merwanjee Patel, Jehanghier Merwanjee, Mr. Janardhun Gopal, solicitor ; Rao Bahadoor S. P. Pundit, Oriental Translator to Government ; the Rev. Mr. Bochum, of St. Xavier's College ; Messrs. Nana Morojee, D. R. Chichgar, Manockjee Cursetjee, Narayan G. Chandavarkar, Jehangir Manockjee Cursetjee ; and others. Having at some length dwelt in the last lecture on the usefulness of a knowledge of arithmetic and mathematics to the student of law, Mr. Serjeant Atkinson directed attention on this occasion to the usefulness of the study of history and of the sciences. In the study of history he included the creations of national poets, such as Homer, Shaik Sadi, Kalidas, Shakespeare, Firdousi, and others, remarking that to the legal practitioner history was an important branch of knowledge to qualify him for a proper discharge of his duties. Equally so was a knowledge of medical jurisprudence, chemistry, and the sciences ; and it was aptly remarked that no man could be great in his own profession without having some knowledge of the sciences. Every client had a right to expect from his lawyer a knowledge of the elements of the abovementioned branches of human study. What Blackstone did for the law was described at some length : he consolidated and systematized what was only isolated or systematised before. In illustration of his remarks, the Serjeant drew largely upon the works of eminent authors : indeed, literary allusiveness was one of the principal features of this, as it was of the previous lectures. The president announced that the next lecture would be delivered that day fortnight at the same hour.

At the conclusion of the lecture Mr. Hormusjee Dadabhoy enquired if the introductory lecture, which was highly spoken of by those who had heard it, as well as the succeeding ones, were to be published. Mr. Justice West replied that they were the copy-right property of the learned Serjeant ; but that it was to be hoped that the same generous spirit which had animated the lecturer in the preparation and delivery of those interesting and instructive discourses to which they had listened would continue to animate him to the close, when their publication would make them the common possession of India and of mankind. (Cheers.) The meeting then separated.

SIR MADHAV RAO.—We very much regret to hear of Sir Madhav Rao's continued indisposition. We trust he will be soon able to shake it off and resume work with his wonted zeal and ability. NATIVE MARRIAGES.—Sethani Sardarvahu is a Shrawak widow. But she seems to possess the wisdom of a man (say, her departed husband's) and the wit of a woman (her own). This is how we prove it. Sethani Sardarvahu has a daughter, who was married in her infancy to a boy, her junior by several years. The young lady—as is the way with many an Asiatic young lady—grew apace, while her affianced lord with the lapse of years grew beautifully less. The boy was found suffering from some wasting disease. Well, the Shrawak girl refused to marry such a small fraction of a husband, and her mother thought she was right. Therefore she gave her daughter in holy wedlock to a fit and proper person. This seems to have upset the Aryans of Ahmedabad. They have imposed a fine upon the two women, and outcasted them for a year. And Ahmedabad has a Prarthnasamaj, and no end of pious, prayerful, and patriotic citizens, beginning with Rao Bahadur Nuggursett Premabai Hemabhai, once a member of the Legislative Council. The sensible Hitechu cries shame upon the Shrawak leaders of Ahmedabad.—Ibid.

FATAL ACCIDENT AT THE B. B. AND C. I. WORKSHOPS.

THE adjourned inquest into the circumstances connected with the death of Cowasjee Dhunjeebhoy, a pattern-maker employed at the B. B. and C. I. Railway workshops, Parell, was resumed on Saturday at the coroner's bungalow, Byculla. The following evidence was recorded :

Mr. Charles Palmer Whitcombe, deposed. I am Assistant Superintendent of the Locomotive and Carriage Department of the B. B. and C. I. Railway. The day before yesterday between 3 and 4 p. m., I was walking round the company's workshops at Parell, when my attention was attracted towards some men who were carrying the deceased. I saw that what had happened, and was told that the 20 H. P. engine which had been driving the sawing machinery had broken down, and that parts of the engine had been driven through the wall of the pattern shop, and the deceased had been struck and seriously injured. I at once went to the engine-room and found the engine entirely disabled. The fly-wheel was fractured into several parts, and one of the broken parts, weighing about half a hundredweight, was lying in the pattern shop. I cannot say what was the cause of the failure of the engine. The fly-wheel, plummer blocks, and some teeth of two cog-wheels had given way. I have examined the broken ends of these parts, and could find no flaws in any. The engine has been at work for the last twelve years, averaging eight hours work per day, exclusive of Sundays and holidays. It has been examined regularly by the inspector of boilers and prime-movers. The date of last examination was 27th of March, 1880. I have examined the foundations of the engine, and found them perfectly sound. I am of opinion that the fly-wheel was sound at the time of the failure of the engine. I went into the saw shop immediately after the failure, to ascertain what machines were actually at work, and I found our two heavy saw frames, which require the greatest power to drive, must have been at work. The greatest number of revolutions of the engine is 116.

Mr. Thomas Thompson, foreman of the erecting shop of the B. B. and C. I. Railway, and in charge of the engines and boilers in that shop, deposed that he had examined the pieces of the broken engine, and he found the metal at all the fractures to be sound. He was not prepared to say what was the cause of the failure of the engine. It was his duty to examine that engine, and he examined it on Sunday last, the 6th instant, and found it in good serviceable condition. The bed-plates of the engine were sound now. He was in the engine-room two hours before the engine broke down. The fly-wheel never was repaired ; it never required repairing. If any of the heavy sawing machines were suddenly stopped working, then the engine would go a little quicker for a few revolutions only, when the governors, which were self-acting, would close the valve, and so diminish the speed.

The enquiry was further adjourned to this day (Monday) at 3 p. m.

HIGH COURT.—MARCH 10.

(Before the Hon'ble Sir CHARLES SARGENT.)

AN INJUNCTION AGAINST THE MUNICIPALITY.

MOOLIBAI, WIDOW, vs. JOHN HAY GRANT, MUNICIPAL COMMISSIONER.

THE plaintiff, the widow of Bhugwandas Morarjee, has filed a suit against the Municipal Commissioner for the city of Bombay, in which she seeks to recover Rs. 501 for damages caused by the defendant to plaintiff's house, situated on the Kalbadevi-road, and also to restrain the defendant from setting back, or calling upon the plaintiff to set back, the house in question. Before the hearing of the suit she obtained, in January last, a rule nisi for an injunction, with ad interim injunction, requiring the defendant to show cause why he should not be restrained from setting back, or calling upon or compelling the plaintiff to set back, her house No. 70 in Kalbadevi-road. At the argument of the rule Mr. Farran, instructed by Messrs. Payne and Gilbert, appeared for the plaintiff ; and Mr. Inverarity, instructed by Messrs. Crawford and Boevey, for the Municipality.

The plaintiff is possessed of two houses in Kalbadevi-road, which were formerly assessed under one number, but are now assessed under Nos. 69 and 70 respectively. On the 6th November, 1880, the defendant is alleged to have wrongfully entered house No. 69 and pulled down a timber framing for a new storey thereof, which had been recently erected at the west portion of the third storey of the house, thereby causing damages which the plaintiff estimated at Rs. 501. House No. 70 of the plaintiff is a building consisting of a ground floor only ; and in September, 1880, proposed to convert the roof of it, which was a sloping one, into a terrace roof. Defendant thereupon required her to set back the house to the extent of twelve feet from the road. Plaintiff, through her solicitors, contended that such requisition was unlawful, as she was not rebuilding the house ; but the defendant insisted thereon, and the plaintiff feared that, unless restrained by the order of the court, he would compel her to, or himself set back the house. Section 154 of the Municipal Act authorises the Commissioner to order or set back when the house or building has either been burnt down or taken down, or fallen down either entirely or to any considerable extent. No definition is given in the section of the words "to any considerable extent ;" and having regard to other sections of the Act to ascertain the meaning of the words, Mr. Farran contended that they meant that the falling down must be to such an extent that it would involve a rebuilding of the whole structure, or at least that the greater part of the house or building has fallen or been taken down.

An affidavit made by Mr. J. H. Grant, in reply to one made by the plaintiff among other things, that, in August last, the plaintiff applied for permission to erect an upper storey upon her house No. 69 and make certain alterations therein. Her application was refused, because the proposed alterations involved the rebuilding of the greater portion of the house. Plaintiff, however, proceeded to erect an additional storey without Mr. Grant's permission, and he thereupon demolished such erection with the sanction of the Town Council, as required by section 167. On the 30th August plaintiff gave the Commissioner notice of her intention to remove the old roof of her house No. 70, and to build a terrace roof in lieu thereof and construct an extra privy thereto. From the plan, however, it appeared that she proposed to remove and re-build the entire superstructure of the house. On the 20th October last Mr. Grant personally inspected the house ; and finding that plaintiff had almost entirely rebuilt it, he obtained the authority of the Town Council to order her back to the line of twelve feet from the road. The plaintiff neglected to set back, and proceeded to rebuild the house upon the portion of the ground required for the improvement of the street. On the 6th November last she was informed that the Town Council had sanctioned the taking up of the ground at Rs. 30 per square yard ; and she was further informed in January last that they had sanctioned the alteration of the house, in accordance with the provisions of section 167, so as to add the piece of land in question to the Kalbadevi-road. It was said to be of great importance to the public that the plaintiff's house should be set back as required.

After hearing the arguments of counsel on the construction of the Act, His Lordship made the rule absolute, thereby restraining the Municipal Commissioner till the hearing of the suit from setting back, or calling upon or compelling the plaintiff to set back, her house No. 70. Costs reserved.
